

Calgary Equity Index: Economic Opportunity Domain Score By Census Tract

The Economic Opportunity domain score is an equally weighted combination of indicators that represent the economic well-being of Calgarians and barriers they face. A high domain score reflects areas with greater inequities and more economic needs, where residents face more significant economic challenges (such as higher income inequality and poverty). A low domain score reflects areas with fewer inequities and fewer economic needs (such as areas with higher incomes, fewer households in core housing need, and lower unemployment rates). The Economic Opportunity domain score for Calgary was 30.9 in 2024.
